This is but one phase of our lives—
however significant— for it has changed the life we used to know

Carry this book
so that when you relax
you may retire within its boundaries and live once again the days you loved so well.

Let this be a collection of memories for not only do we have a need to be, but we also have a need that was.

Here's to you, Class of 1978!!!

DEDICATION

We dedicate
the 1978 Serpentine to
Dr. Thomas Elliott Berry.

It is with much respect and admiration that we dedicate the 1978 SERPENTINE to Dr. Thomas Elliott Berry. He has been an outstanding member of the English Department for thirty-two years, an accomplished author, a constant source of inspiration to many students, and a friend to all.

Dr. Berry began his teaching career at West Chester in September, 1946. He served as a faculty advisor to the Quad Angles from 1950-1968. In 1959, he set up the Graduate Program at West Chester and was selected as its first Director. He served in this capacity until 1972, and then returned to full-time teaching.

As an author, Dr. Berry has currently written ten books. Two of these books: Values in American Culture and Journalism In America are used as basic texts at Cambridge University, England. Journalism In America was also chosen as the best book in its category for 1976 by the United States Information Agency.

Dr. Berry is a true source of admiration and knowledge. He's an excellent teacher, advisor, and friend. He is a unique individual, a seeker of wisdom, and a true scholar.

Dr. Thomas Elliott Berry.

"A teacher affects eternity . . . he can never tell where his influence stops."

Henry Brookes Adams

WEST CHESTER STATE COLLEGE
WEST CHESTER, PENNSYLVANIA 19380 .

THE PRESIDENT

Dear Members of the Class of 1978:

I am especially pleased to have this opportunity to extend greetings through the SERPENTINE. It holds special significance because I arrived as a "freshman" on the campus only five weeks prior to the date that many of you began your first year as undergraduates at West Chester. It is hard to realize that almost four years have elapsed. For me, the experience has been an exciting one. I hope the same has held true for you and that you have found a good learning environment as well as a place in which to partake of those activities that make college a meaningful experience.

You leave West Chester upon graduation for careers in a wide variety of fields. For some of you, graduate work is ahead. Whatever your future plans, I hope you will continue to interact with the institution with which you are now to become affiliated as alumni, and which must continue to serve the needs and interests of its student body. Escalating costs and severely restricted state funding have necessitated curtailment of many services and programs in the four-year period from 1974 to 1978, and there is little prospect of any relief in the near future. The Class of 1978 has felt the full impact of the austerity we now experience. "Ask not what your college can do for you, but rather what you can do for your college" might well be the credo of this class and those who follow. The state colleges must look increasingly to their alumni for both moral and financial support, if they are to continue to serve the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by offering low-cost, quality higher education to every person desiring it.

I regret that it was impossible to know all of you personally. I did, however, have the privilege of becoming acquainted with many members of the class during meetings involving problems of concern to the college community, and on social occasions.

One further note. Please do not restrict your return to campus to the visits on Alumni Day. A warm welcome awaits you at any time and if I am free when you visit I shall be happy to greet you.

Finally, warmest wishes are sent to you for success in your future endeavors. May the years ahead for each of you be everything that you could wish them to be.

Cordially,
Charles H. Mayo

Charles G. Mayo
President

hroughout our lives, we've all had different, yet similar needs to be. As children, we had a need to communicate, to touch, to look, to see, and to be loved. These needs will be with us through eternity.

But as people change and strive to be unique; our needs are expressed in the different activities and studies that we choose to take.

Come with us as we explore the different needs to be as each of us strives to be whatever we want to be.

A need to be me

... to be with me and He
... and be completely free.

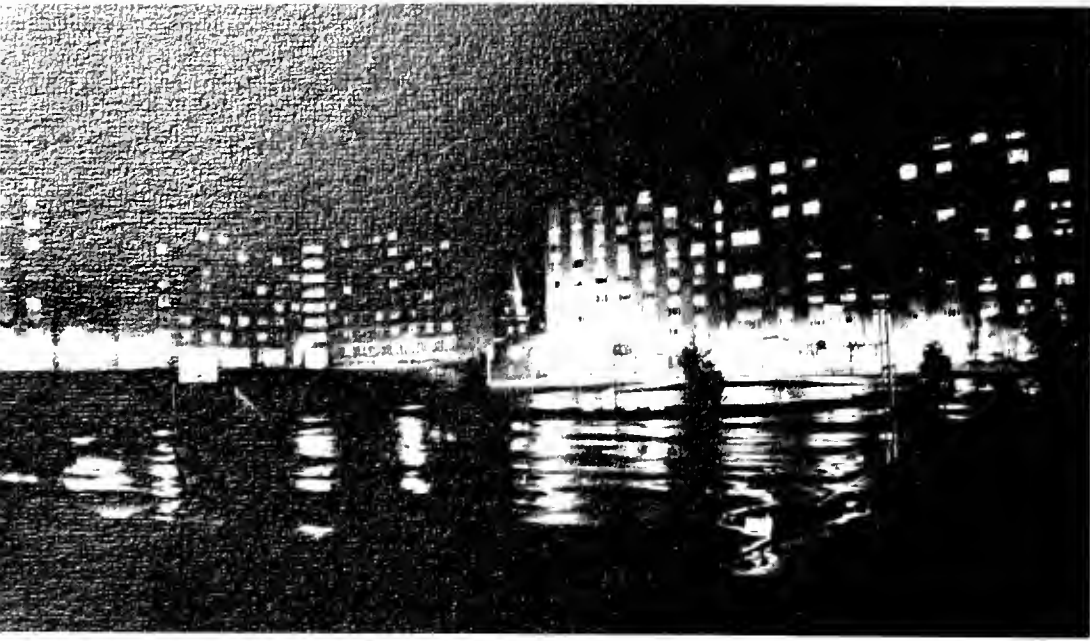

Whether alone or in a crowd

there is always a need to be with the sounds.

*If I had my life to live over,
I would relive it more.
I wouldn't take so many things
so seriously.
I would take more chances.
I would climb more mountains,
and swim more rivers.
Next time
I'd start barefooted
either in the morning and end that way
later in the Fall.
I wouldn't make such good grades
because I enjoyed working for them.
I'd go to more dances,
ride more merry-go-rounds;
I'd pick more daisies.*

PART I STUDENT LIFE

A need to be as different as each new sunrise.

C OMMUTERS LOUNGE

The vast majority of West Chester State students are commuters. Their central meeting place is Sykes Student Union Building, known to us as Sykes or SCUB. In Sykes you'll find everything from a candy counter to the cultural affairs office — including a bunch of commuters resting between classes.

A peek inside one of the many lounges inside Sykes.

A voting table for commuter government in the main lobby.

A commuter takes a stand!!

The dining hall across from the deli — a joy to both commuters and residents.

Signs! Signs! Where can I park???

The Halloween festivities temporarily hampered natural surroundings.

The game room inside Sykes.

Often times it's a long road home for the commuter.

OFF CAMPUS

A need to be . . .

- able to afford it*
- away from rules and regulations*
- in a quiet place to study* (without going to the library)
- a part of the community*
- where anything goes*
- in a place to have keg parties*
- with pets*
- in privacy*
- with boyfriends or girlfriends*
- away from floor gossip*
- in front of a fireplace*
- away from cafeteria food*
- responsible for cooking and cleaning*
- independent*
- home*

Many students tire of dorm life and choose to live off campus. West Chester offers the commuter a variety of places. Some popular dwellings include Walnut House, Ramsgate, Dean St. Apartments and Franklin Court. The numerous apartments, houses and rooms throughout the town provide a variety of sizes, styles, locations and costs. Off-campus students tend to be content, even though they miss a lot of the college happenings.

THE NEED FOR RELAXATION AND FUN

Weekends for the WCSC students is a time to take it easy; a time to relax and a time to hang out with good friends. Weekends help provide time to be yourself.

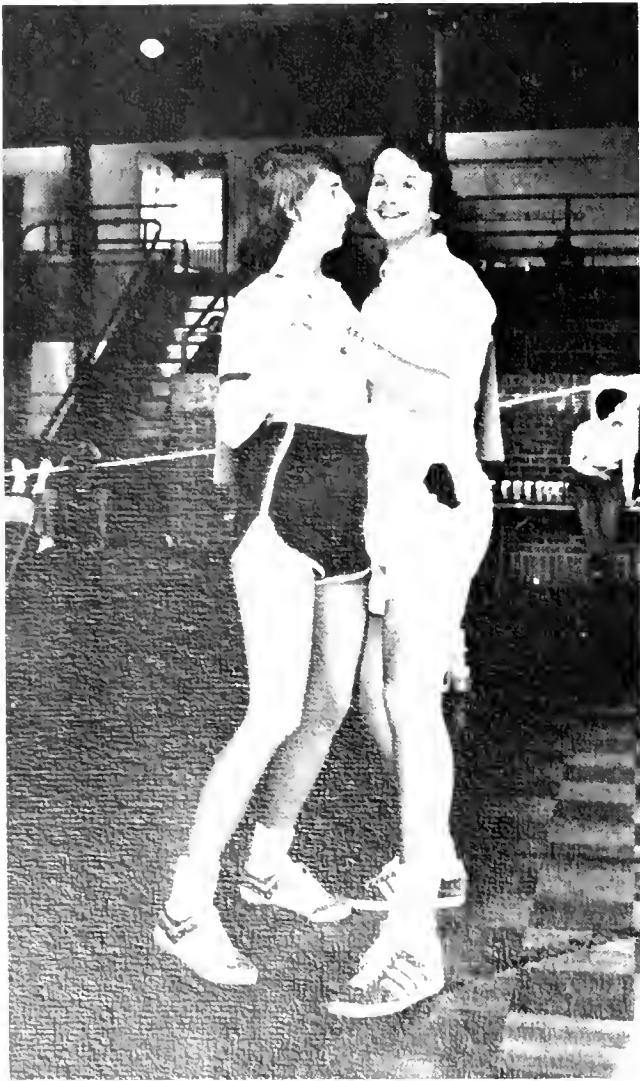

A need to catch up on classwork.

This is what I call a "good time".

You've got to be kidding . . .

New fashions for 1978.

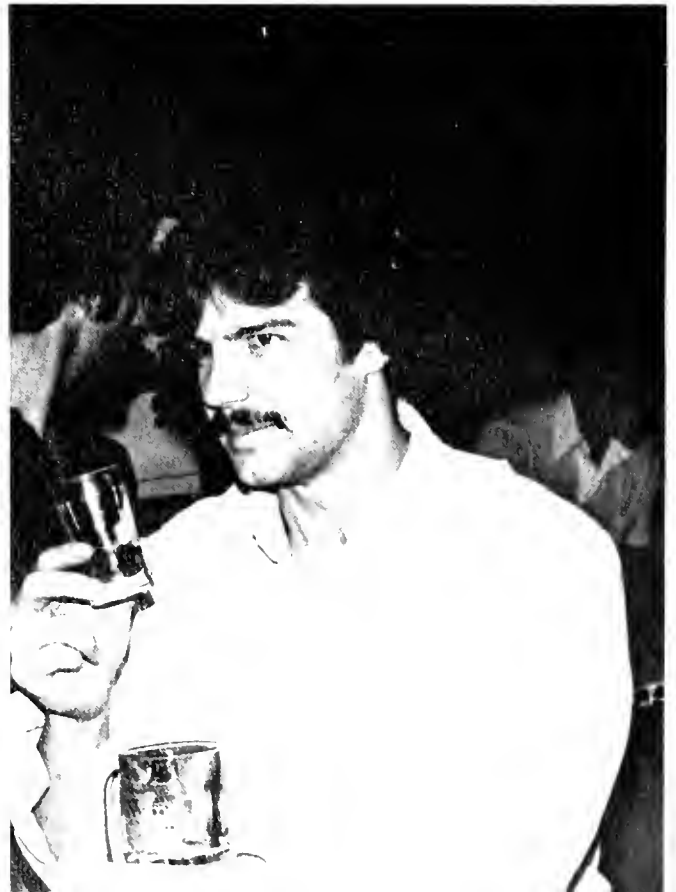

I could have danced all night.

I can't believe tomorrow's Monday.

Getting it together at the dance marathon.

PARTY PLACES

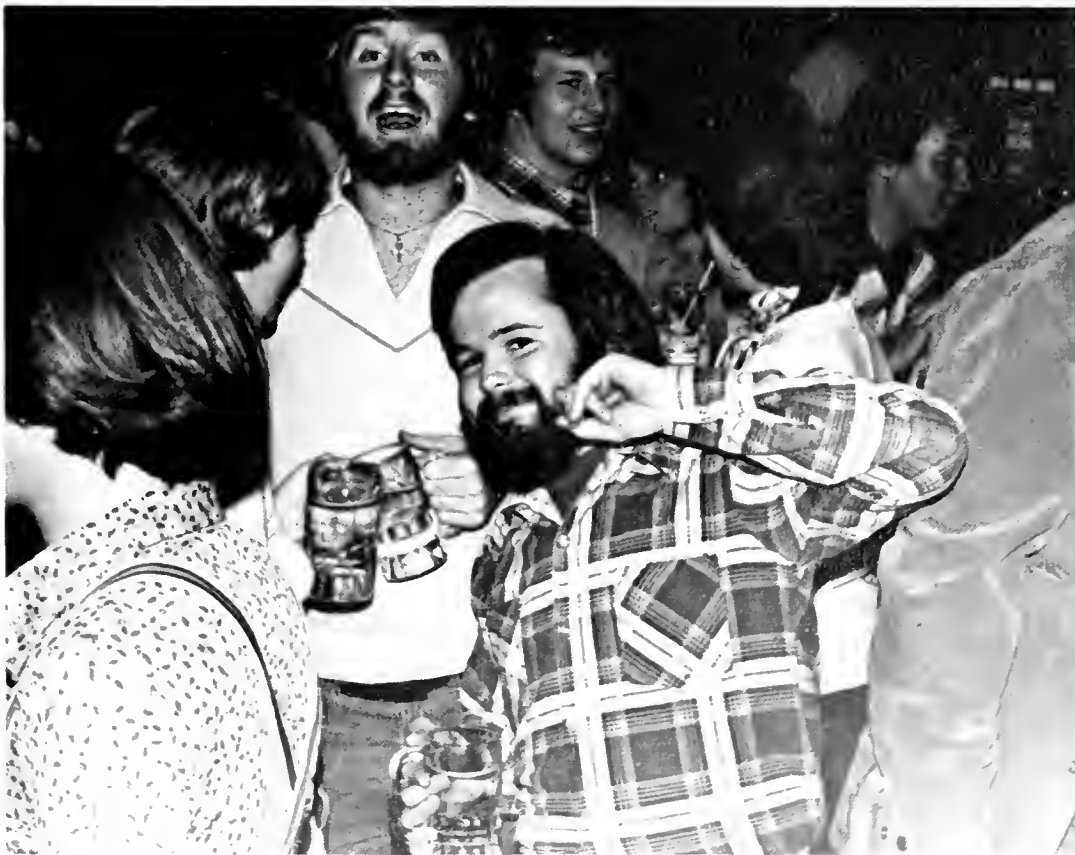

THURSDAY NIGHTS IN RAM COUNTRY . . .

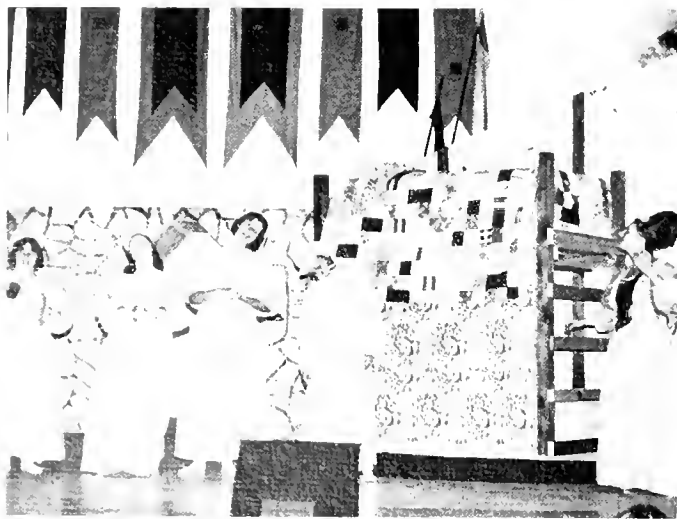

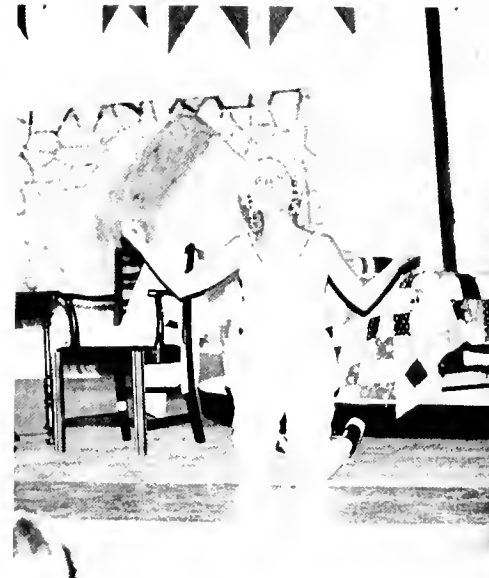

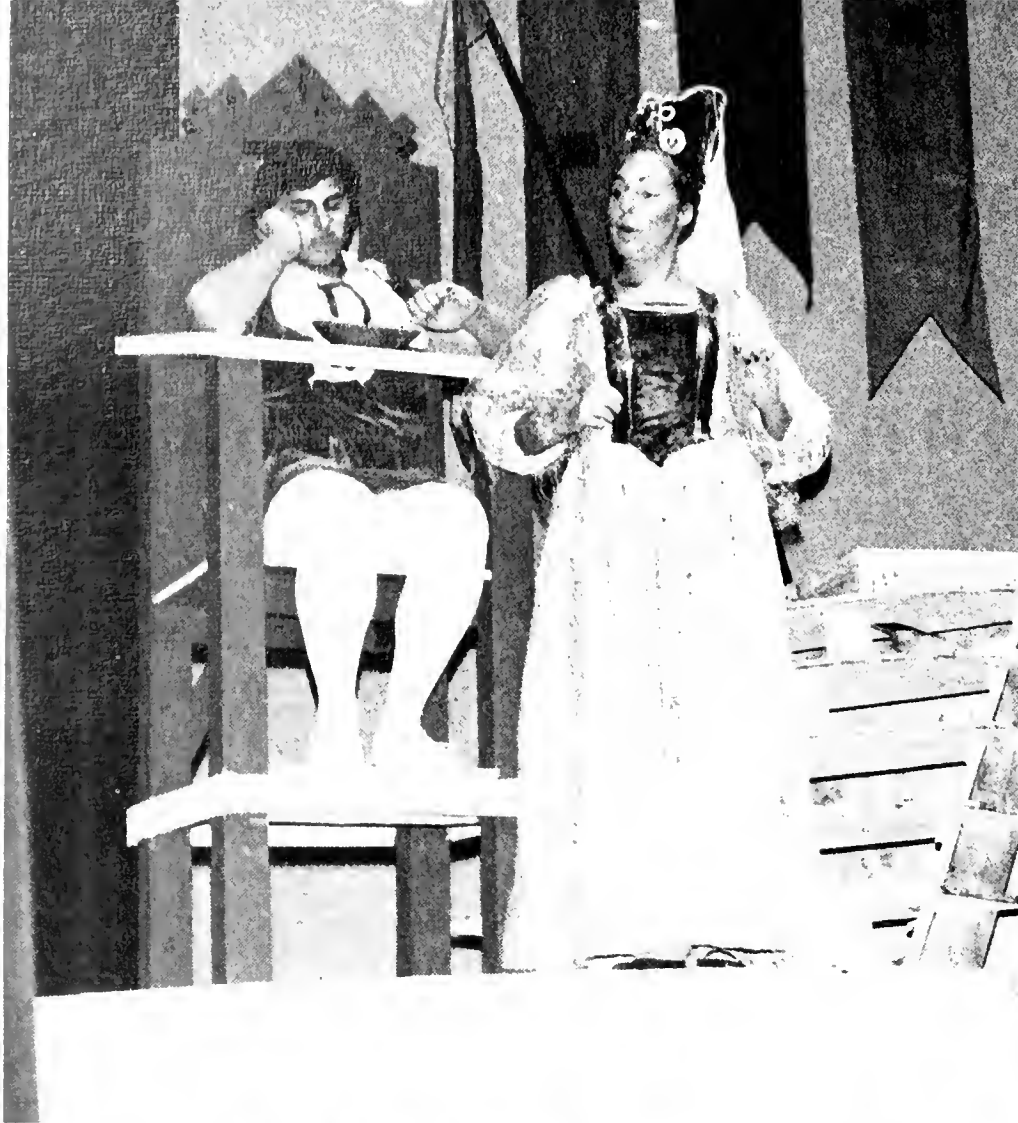

THURSDAY, THURSDAY, THURSDAY! What would West Chester State College beer drinkers do without those glorious "party-filled" nights?

As freshmen the Anvil was a sacred word. Planning for this event of the week was sheer havoc. A typical Thursday night would entail many phone calls, car pool arrangements and a time deadline. If you didn't get to the Anvil by 11:00 for that 25c beer all hell would break loose. It was here, the home of disco dancers and guzzlers, where the socializing began. If you wanted to meet a group of friendly outgoing people, this was the place to go. As word of this outrageous bar spread through the campus so did the crowds.

These times slowly declined as the crowds increased and the years rolled by, however there were other hot spots to hit such as "The Rat". As this bar came into existence so did a few of your twenty-one year old friends who could get into this bar. For those of us who didn't have the privilege we soon became experts at dodging those bouncers with every trick in the book. When one finally reached that golden age it was to the "Rat" to celebrate and oh!, how those twenty-one year olds can celebrate their birth into legal "beer-hood".

All of this and more will long be remembered by those who never let a Thursday Night pass untouched. These four years, a total of 144 Thursday Nights, have become a time where one could get away from the books, the humdrum classes and relax with friends. We're going to miss those Thursday Nights, even miss those Friday hangovers, but we do have the memories that can last forever.

Little Theater

Little Theater has had an extraordinarily busy and successful season. In October, they entered their production of Boys in the Band in the Pennsylvania/New York/New Jersey district competition of the American College Theater Festival. They were one of five, out of forty-eight, schools to be chosen for the semi-finals. The ACFT, sponsored by the American Theater Association, is one of the most prestigious collegiate competitions.

Christmas...

A TIME TO REJOICE

The best cure for a worried and troubled mind during finals is Christmas. Christmas at West Chester is a time of happiness and anticipation, a time for caroling and decorating. It is the season when secret santas appear and surprise packages arrive. During Christmas, there are always parties to go to, concerts to enjoy, and gifts to exchange. The excitement of the season and thoughts of home make Christmas the best time of the year for everything — everything except FINALS!!

She's our Christmas pixie.

WINTER WONDERLAND

Winter '77-'78 will long be remembered as "the winter to forget". For the first time in 17 years classes at West Chester State were cancelled and for several days all campus activities came to a fast halt. With an almost record accumulation 18 inches of snow, the frequent scenes on campus included high drifts of snow, sledders on "cuisine" trays, drivers pondering how to get their snow covered cars out from behind the tennis courts, and icy sidewalks that never seemed to melt. The worst of the winter came however, not from the snow but from the cancellation of the Presidential Holiday vacation, which was taken away to make up for the last snow days. Winter '77-'78 at West Chester State — an experience!!

I CARE WEEK

The first week in October was designated "I Care Week" at West Chester State. "I Care Week" gave each student a chance to see that in saying, "I care", a whole realm of individual needs could be realized: the need to belong and the security within that belonging, the need to understand and to be understood, the need for listening, as well as responding. "I Care Week" brought to our campus the basic need of every person, the need to be.

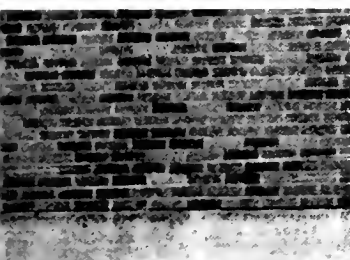

In celebration of I Care Week, a plant contest was held in Sykes Student Union Building.

The Indians camped out in front of the Old Library.

"I Care!!"

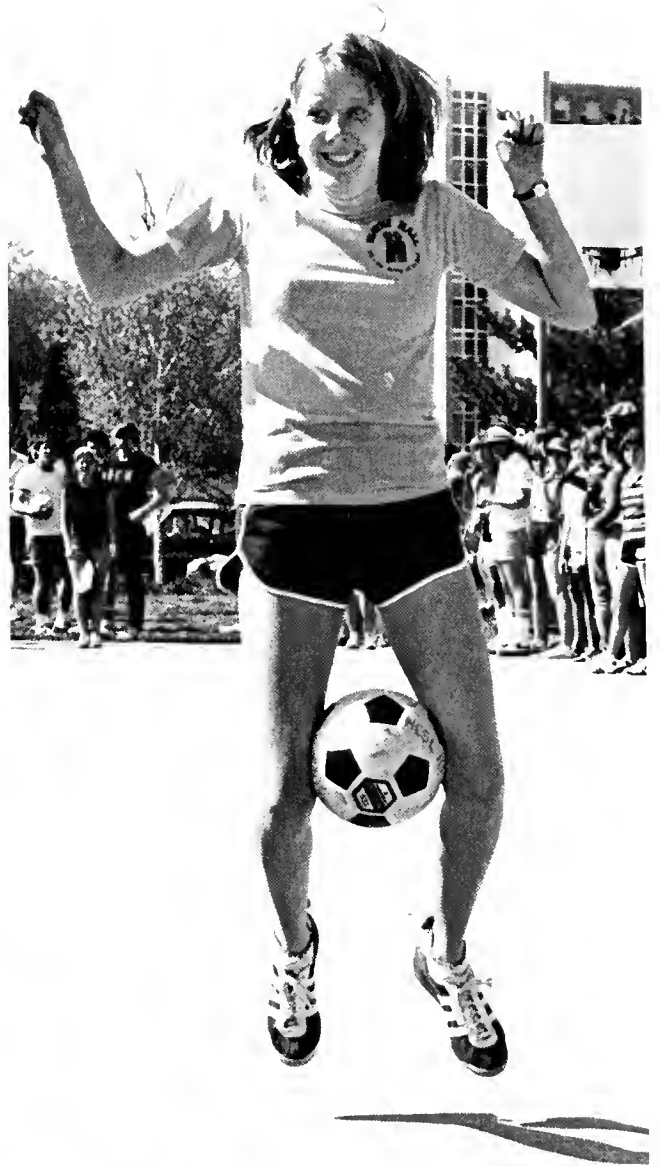

Everyone gathered in the Quad area where tables were set up displaying artistic, creative and outstanding achievements.

Two men showed off their talent in front of New Main Hall.

Senioritis

Contrary to the opinion of most, Advanced Senior Apathy, commonly called "senioritis" is no laughing matter. Rather, it is a deadly disease that affects thousands of people throughout the country, including close to 100% of the seniors at West Chester State College. It is a disease that can impair, cripple, and kill. It impairs concentration to the point where simple tasks become increasingly difficult. It severely cripples one's academic output, until it reaches the "bare minimum" or 2.0 line. And it can kill one's motivation as effectively as Kate Smith stepping on cockroaches.

Senioritis is technically classified as a social disease, as many of its victims congregate in groups, causing mass academic output and motivation to nosedive to incredible lows. Although seen mainly in college students, the disease has taken a severe toll in high schools, and also, has recently dipped even to eighth grade elementary classes. This disease is usually divided into four stages according to the time of year felt. These stages increase with severity.

The first stage is the "On the top of the world" stage, and is usually seen in people in the late summer and early fall at the start of senior year. In this stage, the patient has a general feeling of well-being, which is very surprising considering his feelings in the subsequent stages. He feels that as a senior, there is no one in the world above him, and he must now set an example for the entire school as to the ways a senior is supposed to act. Academic performance and motivation is still relatively high in this stage, for the victim believes that this year can be the best used to prepare themselves for life after senior year. This stage of the disease is often harmless enough to go unnoticed.

The second stage is the "All this garbage is really starting to bug me" stage and usually starts in mid-fall and lasts until final exams of the fall semester. In this stage, the victim starts to show a greatly increased interest in many of the Fine Arts (Intro. to Film, Photography, Intro. to Art and Painting, Ceramics, and Understanding Music) as well as increased interest in Alcoholism and Short Story with Dr. West. This trend can be seen from the courses seniors sign up for during fall registration for spring semester. Oddly enough, also during this time, the victim also starts to receive sporadic cravings for many junk foods, such as beer, liquor, potato chips, pretzels, and Courtyard pitchers. These cravings usually occur late in the week (especially Thursday nights) and intensify in length and frequency as senior year progresses. Academic performance, although still somewhat high, starts its precipitous drop in this stage.

Stage three, or the "This is my last chance for a decent holiday and I'm really going to get partied-out" stage, is the only stage which occurs entirely in a non-academic period. It is the most social of the stages, with the victims spending much of their time in very non-productive pastimes, such as relaxing and partying. During this time, the victim will go to social events, only at certain times and for certain occasions such as "it's Tuesday afternoon and I haven't partied in over four hours," or "the Flintstones are coming on, let's have a party!" Academic performance is immeasurable during this period, mainly because victims forget that they must still finish a semester in college before graduation (this disillusion sometimes lasts right up to graduation).

Stage four, the "Let's get this over with" stage, is the most severe, most crippling, and most deadly of the stages. In this stage, academic performance and motivation reach a bare minimum, with courses such as a "Senior Seminar" often taking much of the crunch of this lack of motivation. In fact, in this stage, all of the student's interests are completely blocked out, with notable exceptions such as partying, cutting class, and members of the opposite sex, but not in that order!! In this stage, the victim is entirely disabled, and all forms of treatment are completely ineffective in the time up until early May. The only thing that can be done here is to keep the patient comfortable which he will always do by himself, anyway.

Treatment for senioritis comes in the abrupt form of graduation. Effects can be of two types: Adjustment Shock, in which the patient starts to doubt whether or not he can adjust to a new school or job, and moving away from or back to home; and Free-Floating Shock, which is most severe, and which includes the patient's tremendous fear that he will not find a job or school and will "free-float" into the unemployment line. These effects cannot be treated and must, instead, be let free to follow their own course.

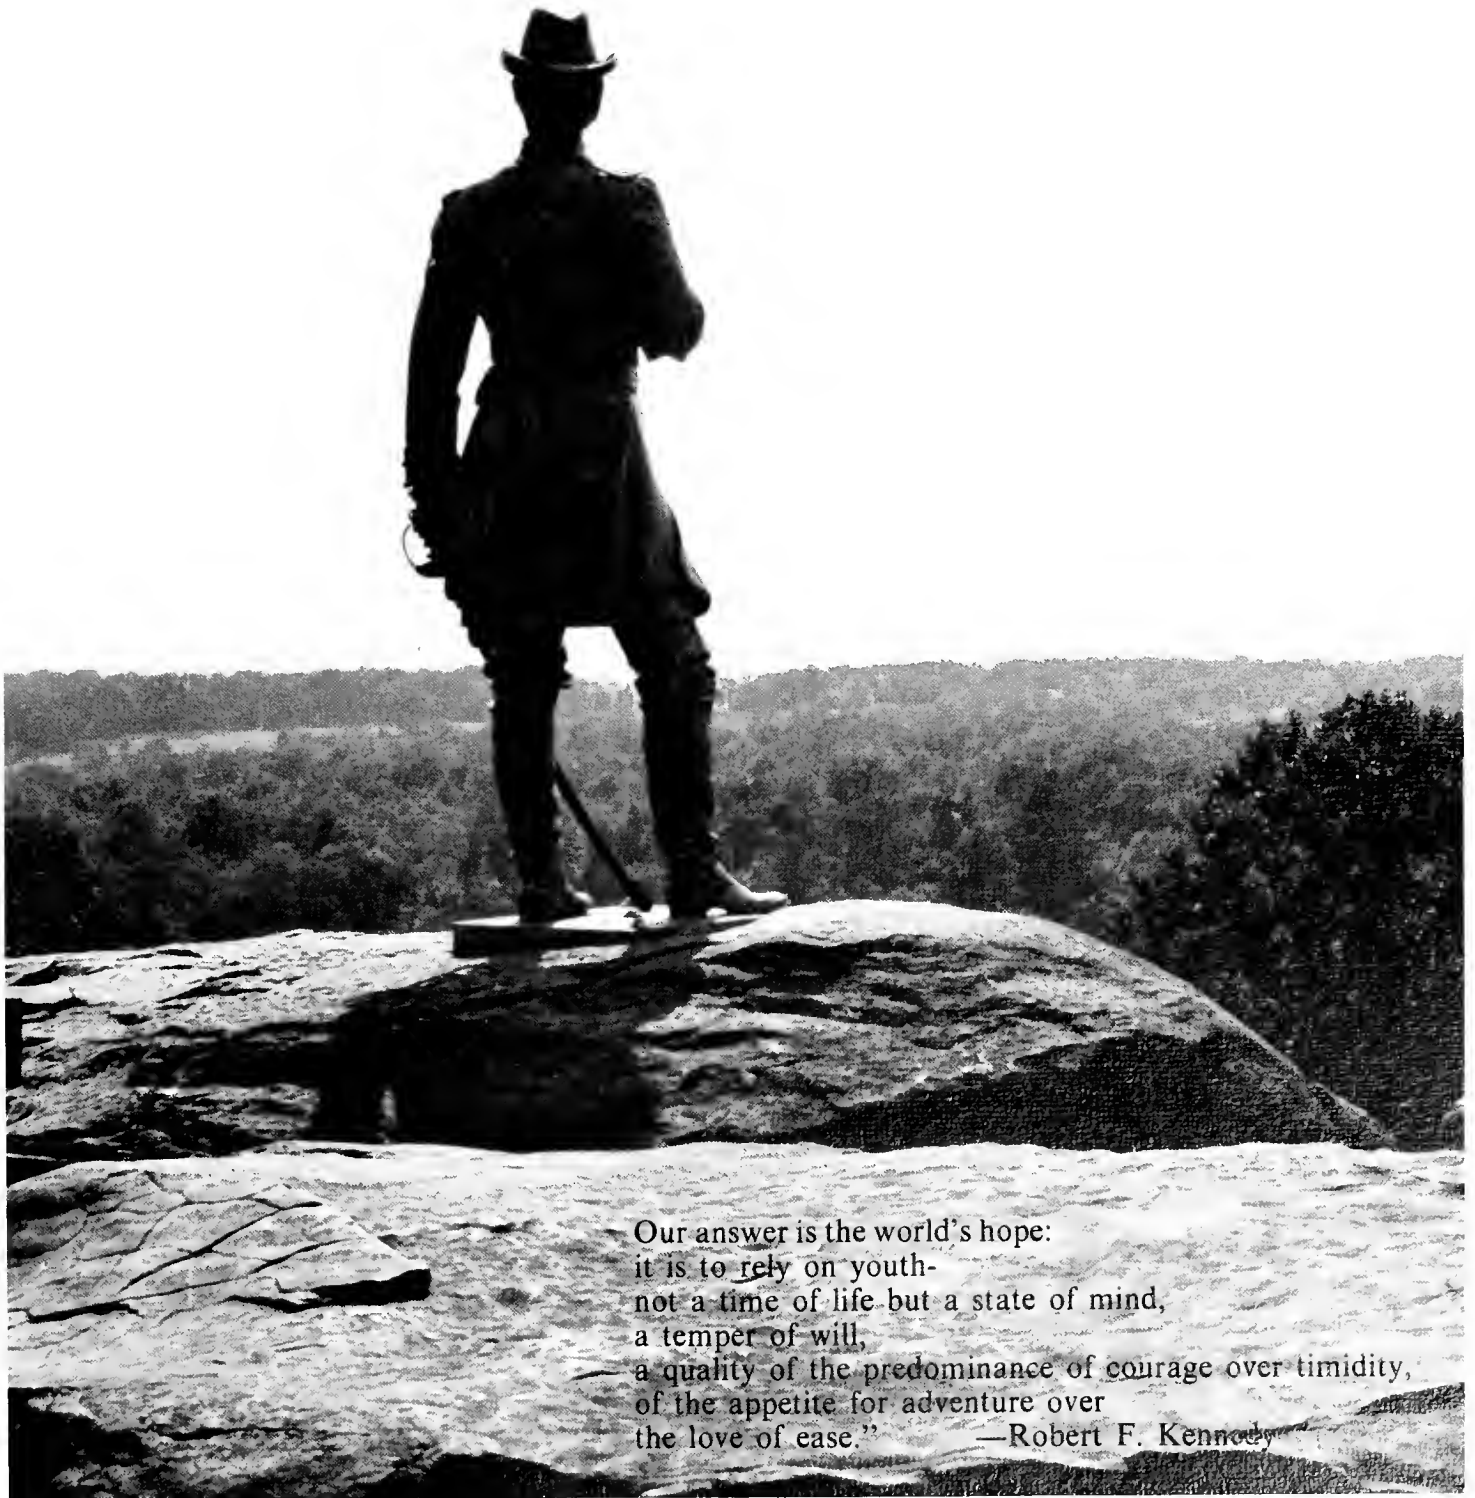

As in any other major disease, Advanced Senior Apathy does have its warning signs. Underclassmen also begin to cut classes for reasons such as "it's Thursday," or "I just didn't feel like getting out of my chair." These are sure to be hard hit victims and should see their Academic Deans for immediate treatment. Juniors who have an insatiable craving for five easy Fine Arts courses are definitely early victims and should receive immediate help. And sophomores who decide to party because ground beef has dropped to 89 cents a pound at the corner A&P may be already advanced enough into the early stages to be deemed terminal.

If you see a senior in the hall who is obviously suffering from the disease, do not harass him about not having any work to do, nor should you drill him with questions on future plans. Instead, try to make him comfortable: hand him a beer and a frisbee, carry his books, and try to get him to the nearest party as soon as possible.

There is much more I could tell you about Advanced Senior Apathy, but I really just don't feel like writing any more. Unfortunately, I am incurably into stage four.

Our answer is the world's hope:
it is to rely on youth—
not a time of life but a state of mind, a temper of will,
a quality of the predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure over the love of ease.” —Robert F. Kennedy

Welkinweir . . .

West Chester's most recent land acquisition is Welkinweir, the 166-acre, northern Chester County estate which was presented to the college as a gift by Mr. and Mrs. Everett G. Rodebaugh.

The stone mansion at Welkinweir dates back to 1750 with an 1800 addition as well as a wing added in 1940. Filled with a remarkable collection of historically valuable books, antiques and objects d'art, the residence is now used for concerts, seminars and conferences.

Highlights from among the contents include numerous authenticated Chester County pieces of furniture, an E. M. Skinner Automatic Pipe Organ (one of only five still in existence in working order in the country), a Mason & Hamlin Piano, antique clocks, an English silver collection, and a variety of oriental rugs.

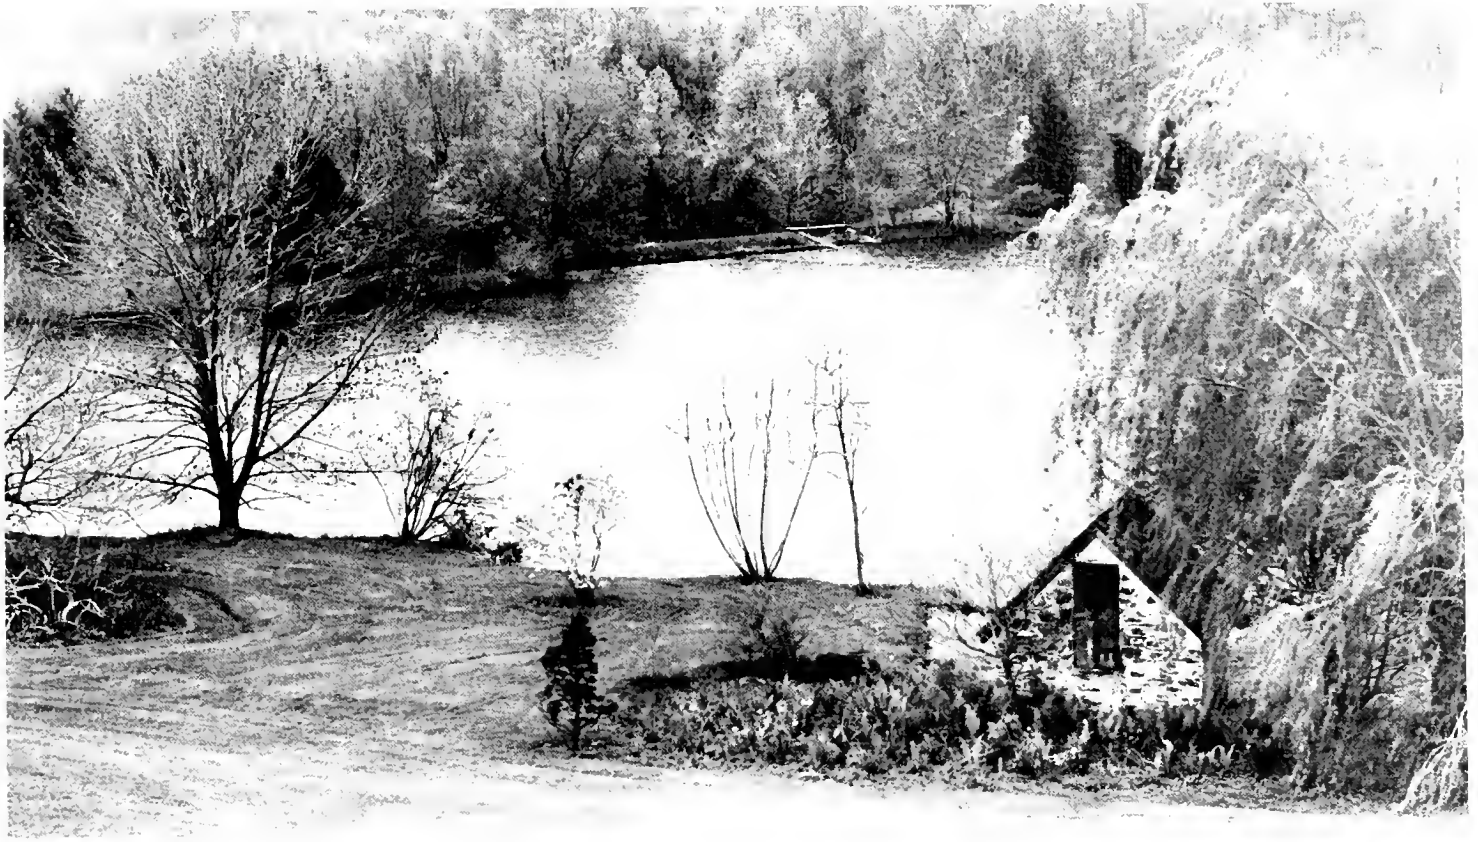

Welkinweir's grounds contain a six-acre, man made lake and seven ponds; lawns; forrested areas; and unusual plantings. Access to the Appalachian Trail can be made from the Horseshoe Trail which passes through the property.

The One and The Other

Long, long ago, in those wondrous days of hush-a-bye, there was a being called "Other." This being was not particularly beautiful, intelligent, or sociable. To "Other", life was just existing from day to day; he didn't communicate, he knew not of happiness or love, he only knew that some day the mystery would come. It would envelop him. He just waited . . . and waited . . . and waited.

He worked at Dipzit Manufacturing and what a boring job he had. He was the most unhappy "Other" of all. He sat all day putting wippets into doozles and didn't enjoy it at all. But, nevertheless, when the job was done, "Other" went home and became lonelier and sadder and unhappier by the day.

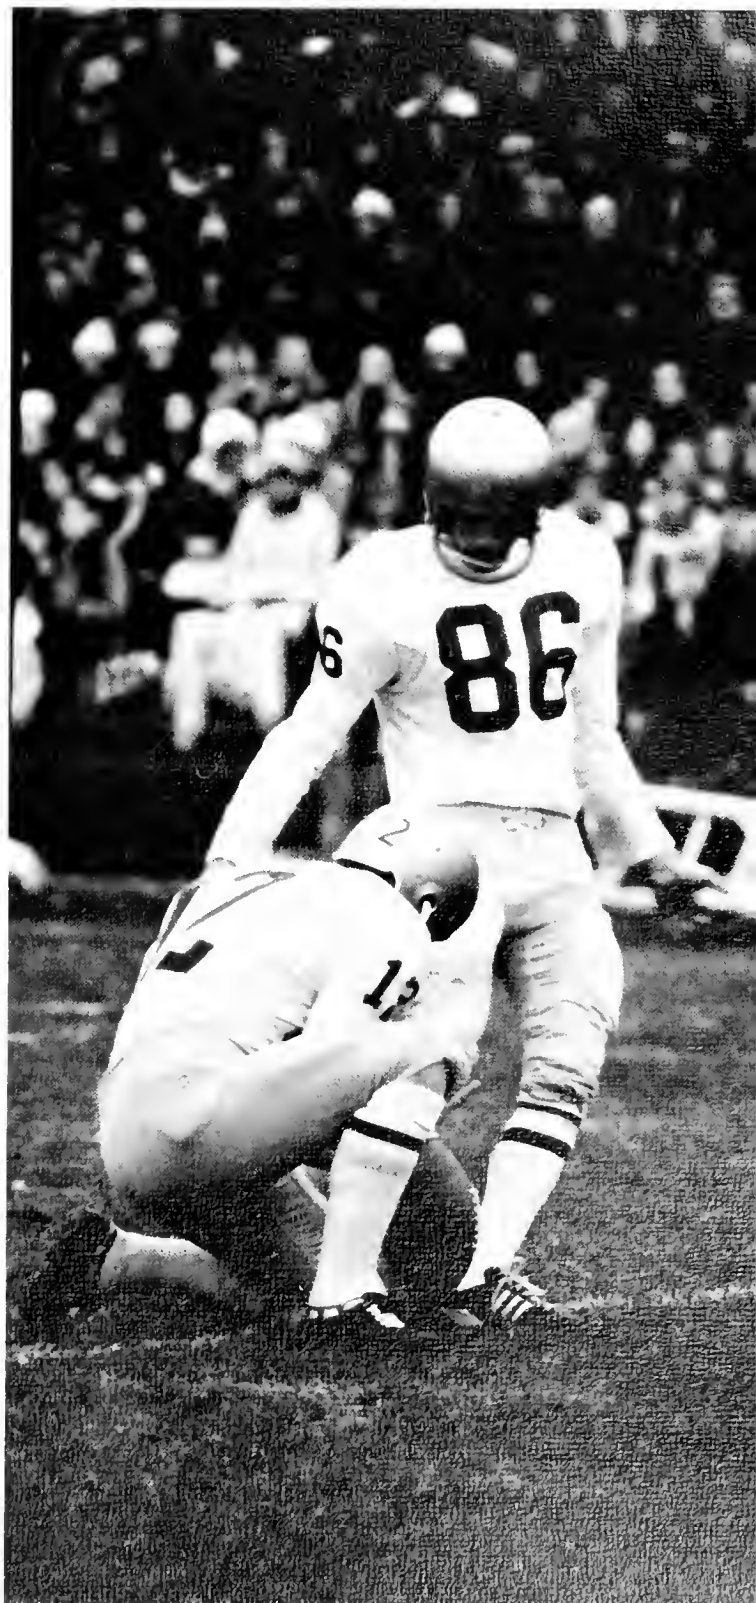

No one paid much attention to "Other" because the general opinion was that he was too pitiful. However, one day a knock sounded on the door. "Other" answered the door and a look of astonishment appeared on his face. "Hello Other, I'm One." Other was surprised, shocked and almost happy to have a visitor. "Wh-Who are . . . I mean what . . . no, who are you? Why do you visit me?" One said to Other, "I've been sent to enlighten you to the mystery. You will learn many things in this short time and will be pleased with this newly acquired knowledge."

A short period of time passes and "Other" was still working at Dipzit Manufacturing when a message was sent to him concerning someone named One. "Please return home. One has been severely hurt." "Other" left work and when he got home, One was scarcely breathing. Other sat for hours and hours until One died. "Other" sat and, with tear filled eyes, began to speak to the lifeless form of One. "You realize, of course, that I have held these thoughts inside my heart and mind for so long. I don't know why I speak now. You can no longer hear me, but I will continue. You have taught me many things in this short time. I thank you. You have shown love and companionship, sorrow and happiness, discretion and honesty. For a being worse off than myself, you have so much more than I might ever have dreamed possible. It was an honor to have known you. I am proud to be called your Friend. Never will I forget you, cease loving you, or speak unjustly of you. You have accomplished the task you were sent to do. Now you are dead. You have taught me the mystery of Love and Friendship and now I live with your spirit to guide me until I join you someday. Again, my lifeless companion, I love you."

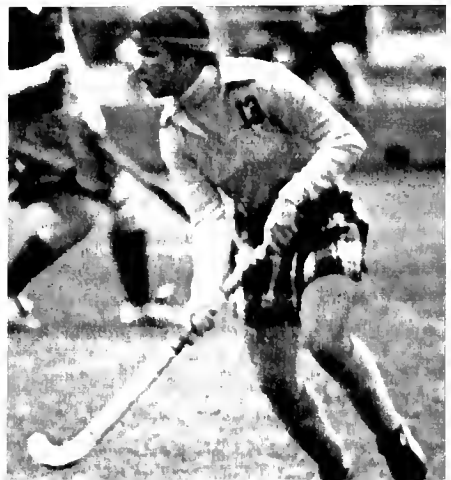

And with that, "Other" turned and walked away with a lonely tear in his eye — but also with a smile on his once forsaken heart.

IN SPORTS

It was one of those seasons that a coach dreads and Varsity Football coach, John Furlow is no exception. Pre-season expectations were high, but injuries to several starters made it necessary to change strategy for several games.

The Craig Atkinson to Joe Sensor combination proved to be very strong, as Sensor had 796 yards in 54 receptions for a 14.7 yard average and 4 touchdowns. Sensor was named to first team, all-East Coast Athletic Conference Division II. Bill Blystone was team rushing leader, gaining 847 yards on the ground.

JV FOOTBALL

The Junior Varsity football team had a long 1-4 year. The Young Rams waited until their last game of the season to post a victory, defeating the U.S. Military Academy 21-0. Because of the ever changing personnel problems with the varsity, the JV's were never sure who was going to suit up for their games.

SOCCER

West Chester had one of the most successful soccer campaigns in a long time. The Ram Booters posted a successful 8-6-1 seasonal record on their way to posting their first East Coast Conference title and their first league championship since 1970.

Playing a tough schedule, the team swept through the ECC Western Division without a defeat. Among this seasons toughest opponents were Penn State and Army.

Co-captains Mike Todd and Dick Deininger were definitely leaders by example. Todd was the Western Division's top goal keeper, stopping 88% of all shots made, and both men were named to the ECC All Star Team.

CROSS COUNTRY

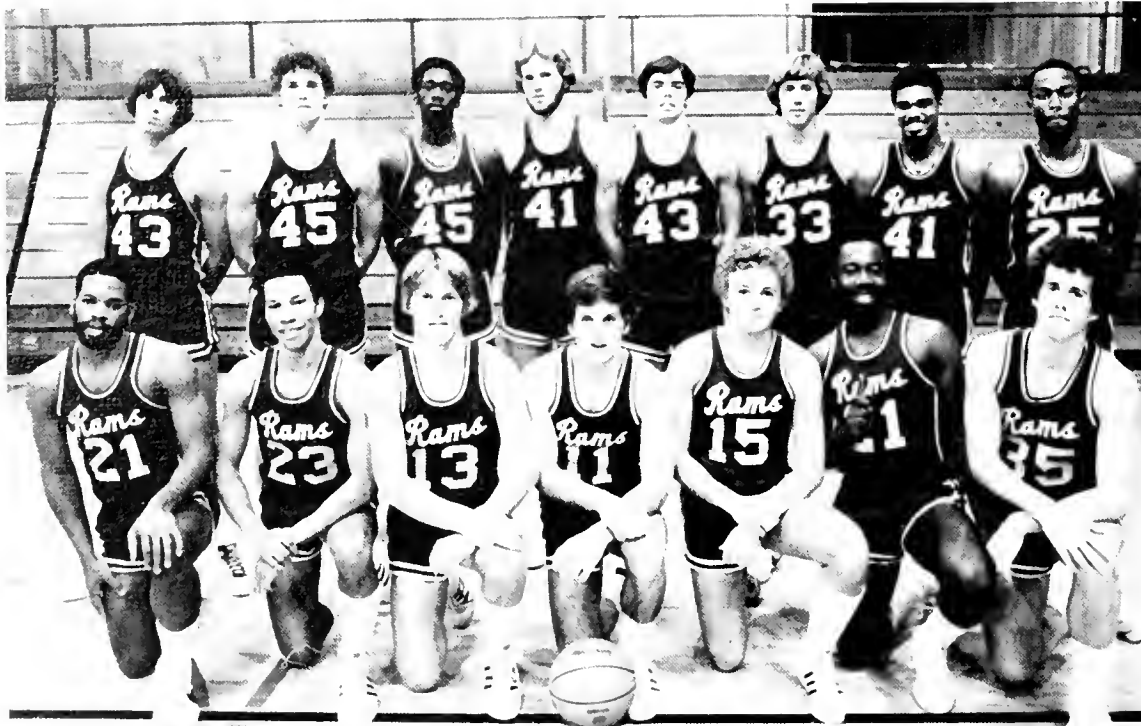

The Cross Country team had one of the finest seasons in recent memory. The Harriers compiled an impressive 10-3 record overall and a 6-2 record over East Coast Conference teams. Among the highlights was the upset victory over the NJ State College Champion, Glassboro.

Team leaders were senior co-captains, Mike Horne and John Kelsh. Also playing an important role through the season were seniors Cliff Whitehead, Pete Henry, and junior Pat Quirk. The Rams also proved to have good team strength as they placed fifth in the competitive ECC Championship and 6th in the IC4A's Championship.

The varsity basketball team had a depressing season that never seemed to come together. The team did play much better basketball than their 6-19 season log would indicate. Paced by senior co-captains Kevin Allen and Jeff Witmer, the men played some excellent team offense, enabling Joe Sensor to once again rank among the top three in the country in field goal percentage. The team, unfortunately, lost a number of heartbreaking games in the final minutes. With the loss of only two seniors, things are looking up for next year's team.

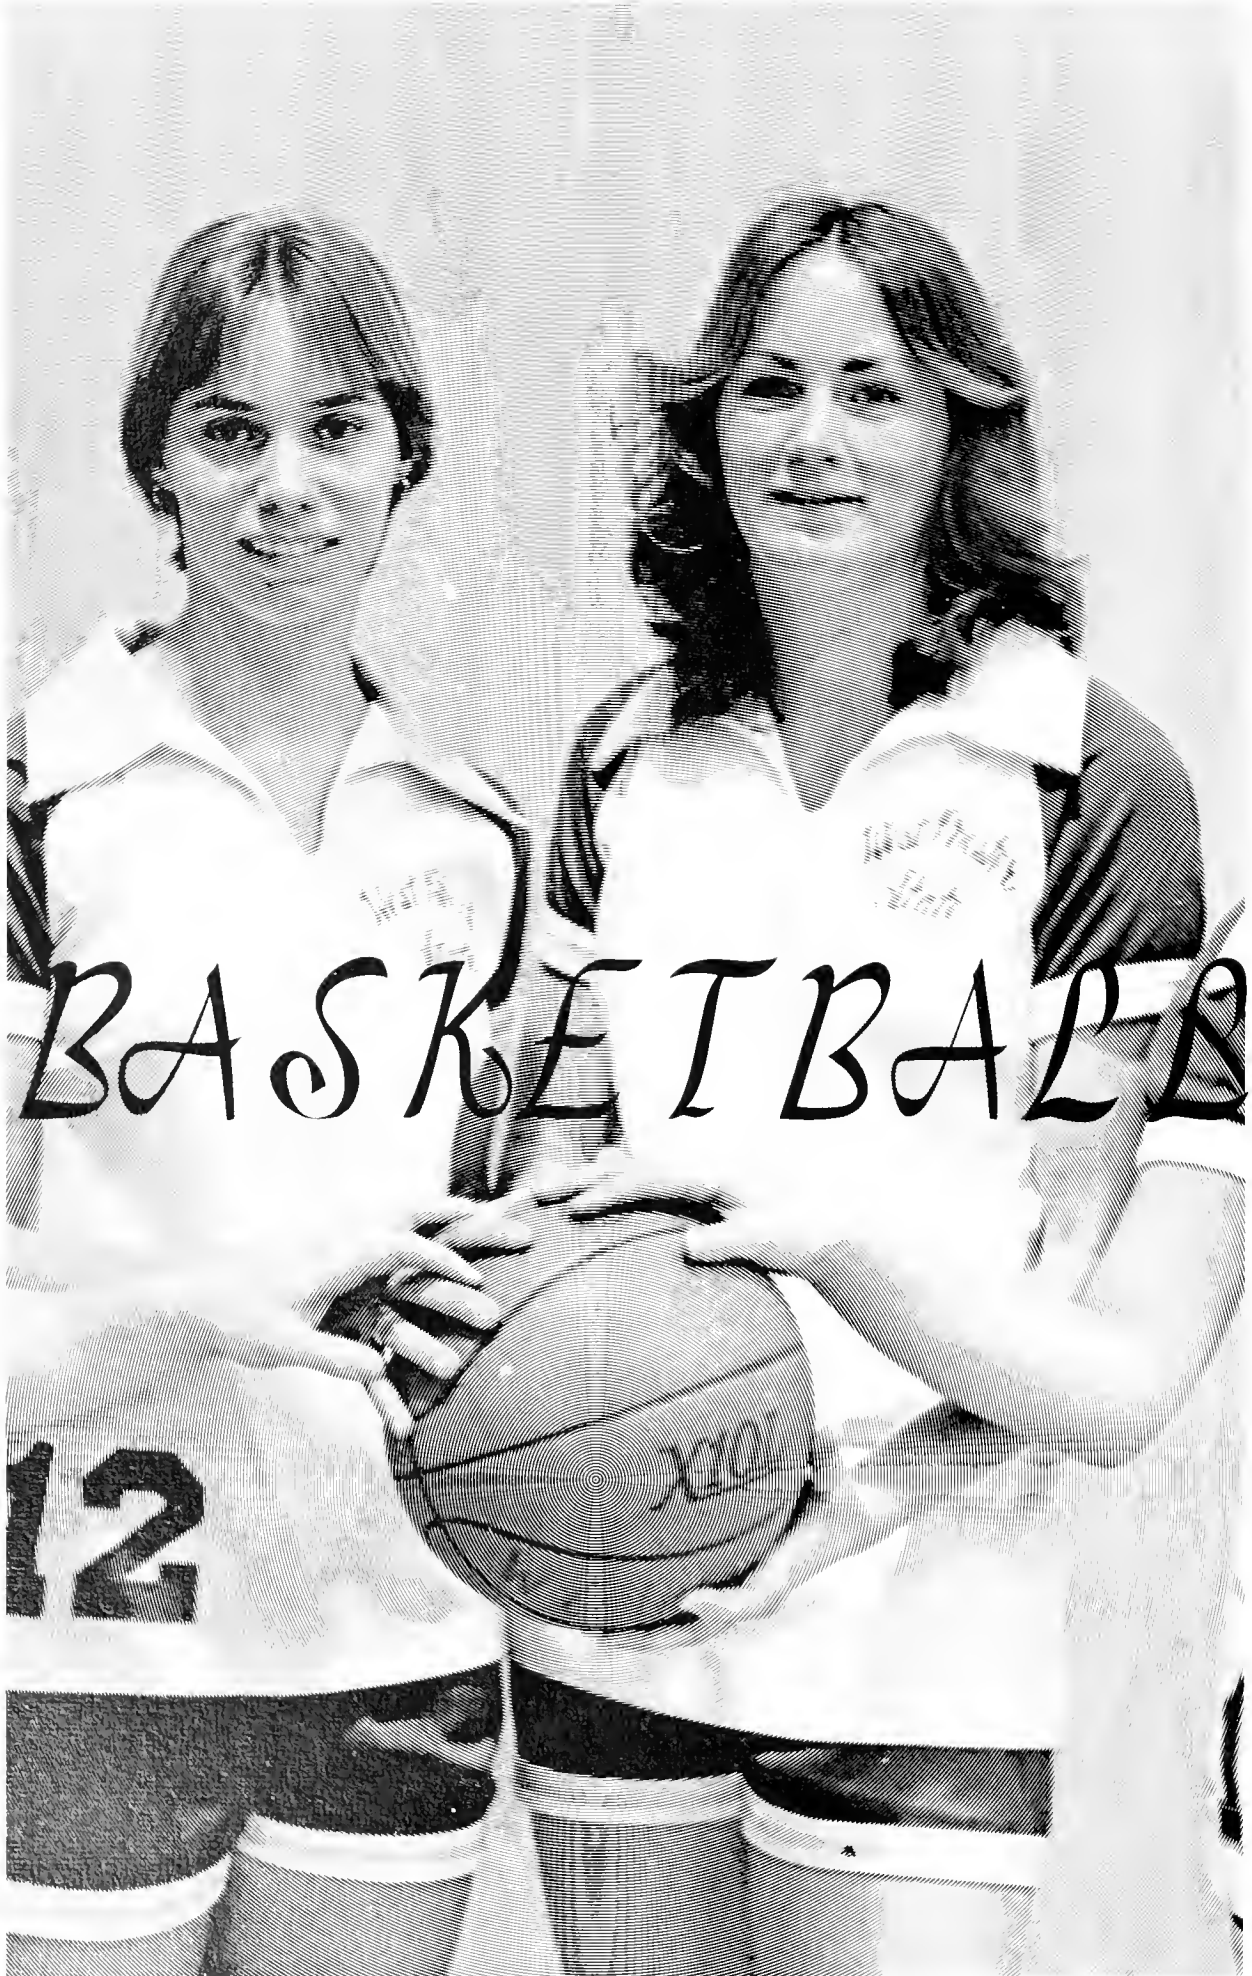

JV BASKETBALL

It was a tough year for the Junior Varsity basketball team. The team had a dismal 1-14 record on the season, their only win coming in the last game of the season against Lehigh in overtime. They were a talent-laden squad who, at times played well together, but weren't always aggressive on defense which proved to be their downfall. But they will provide the varsity with some solid ball players such as John Nairn and Bernie Lajuene.

Kneeling — Coach Craig Hofford, Bert Martin, Jeff Frechette, Pete Cautelli, John Nairn. Standing — Gary Pierzga, Robert Anderson, Glen Adelsburger, Bernie Lajuene, Tom Nagle.

Injuries played a major role in many W.C.S.C. sports this year, and Women's Basketball was no exception. The team's key injury was to head coach Kitty Caldwell, who was sidelined early in the season by an automobile accident. Led by former Ram star Linda Lastoka, the girls played a demanding schedule including nationally ranked St. Joseph's, Montclair State, and Immaculata Colleges. Team co-captains Rose Cirino and Theresa Dunbar, led the team in scoring and defense respectively.

WRESTLING

Who would have thought a team so full of talent could end their season with a losing record? Well, it happened. The wrestling team began the season on the strong foot, taking second place finishes at the Civitan Monarch Open, and the Phila. Metro Invitational. In the highly prestigious Lock Haven Tournament, the Rams placed fourth while walking off with the team championship in the Salsbury State Invitational. With a reputation of being such a dangerous tournament team they were rated thirteenth in the east by a national poll committee.

Despite the talent and enthusiasm, injuries and illness took over their dual meet season. Plagued with broken bones and the flu, the grapplers managed a 4-9 record.

With only one graduating senior, co-captain Nelson Stratton, the team is looking forward to a fresh start next year. The Rams ended their season placing third in the East Coast Conference with one individual champion, three second places, and one third.

INDOOR

This year's indoor track team had a successful campaign. With a season record of 5-1, they kept alive a home winning streak that runs back to the late 1960's. Among the highlights of the season were: John Majewski clearing 6' 10" for the second best jump in school history, the mile relay of Doug Owens, Jeff Noel, Steve Kinsey and Joel Pechart placing first at the Phila. Track Classic, and Bruce Norris taking 2nd in the 60 yard hurdles at the Middle Atlantic AAU's. The Rams sent three athletes to the IC4A's (Norris, Majewski and high jumper John McVan) and also placed 5th in the indoor ECC Championships.

The men's gymnastics team had a tough act to follow as last year's squad won the North Atlantic Gymnastic Conference Championships in convincing fashion. Led by senior Frank Kudlac in the all-around category, the Rams tackled the challenge and came up with a 4-7 record against such teams as the University of Pittsburgh, Brochport State, Onenta and Navy. The team loses only a few athletes because of graduation and is looking forward to next season.

Women's Gymnastics was another sport that was plagued by injuries. Senior Margie Siegel, had a good year scoring consistently in both the vault and bars.

Rugby is one of those sports almost everyone enjoys watching or participating in, whether they know the rules or not. This year's team, captained by Walt Bonstian, led an impressive 6-3 season, highlighted by taking first place in the All College Tournament. Among the scoring leaders were: Terry Spratt, Dave Racich, and Greg Reffenberger. Another key man for the Rugby team was Scott Bradbrud who helped the men carry on a winning season.

You are looking at a group of dedicated people who spend more hours working with athletics than the athletes themselves do. The athletic trainers club, under the supervision of Phil Donley (Eastern Athletic Trainers Association Trainer of the year), provides coverage for all intercollegiate sports teams of W.C.S.C., working primarily with the care and prevention of injuries. Most trainers are working towards their national certificates as an athletic trainer.

On Education

He always wanted to explain things,
But no one cared.
So he drew.

Sometimes he would draw and it wasn't enough.
He wanted to carve it in stone or write it in the sky
And it would be only him and the sky and the things inside of him that needed saying.

It was after that he drew the picture.
It was a beautiful picture.
He kept it under his pillow and let no one see it.
And he would look at it every night and think about it.
And when it was dark and his eyes were closed, he could still see it.
And it was all of him.
And he loved it.
When he started school he brought it with him,
not to show anyone but just to have it with him like a friend.

It was funny about school;
he sat behind a square, brown desk like all the other square, brown desks, and he thought it should be red.
And his room was a square, brown room like all the other square, brown rooms and it was tight and closed and stiff.
He hated to hold a pencil and chalk,
with his arms stiff and feet flat on the floor.

When the teacher came and spoke to him,
she told him to wear a tie like all the other boys.
He said he didn't like them.
She said it didn't matter.
After that he drew.
And he drew all yellow and it was the way he felt about morning.
And it was beautiful.
The teacher came and smiled at him.
"What's this?" she said. "Why don't you draw something like Ken is drawing?" "Isn't that beautiful?"
After that his mother bought him a tie.
And he always drew rocket ships and airplanes like everyone else.
And he threw the old picture away.

And when he lay alone looking at the sky
it was big and blue and all of everything.
But he wasn't anymore. He was square inside and brown and his hands were stiff.
And he was like everyone else.
And the things inside of him that needed saying weren't said anymore.
It had stopped pushing —
it was crushed.
Stiff.
Like everyone else.

I was planted after you —
in the Springtime I grew up next to you;
I learned how to live in your shadow —
You, a spirited oak,
I, a weakly elm.
How'd we'd love to tilt in the wind and digest the sun letting our leaves down
when the rain comes.

In the summer a new tree was planted between you and me
and together we formed an indestructible line;
Now I grew in the maple's shadow and he protected me with leaves much bigger than yours.

In the Autumn we let all our leaves fall to the ground,
the maple produced a carpet
to keep my roots warm.
I had forgotten how it felt to have our branches touch when the wind thought we must.

In the winter it was,
when the sun shifted
and you, my poor oak,
tumbled dead, breaking my branches not giving any answers making me weep all the day while your trunk
leaned on the maple.

The Castle

With the first million he bought the castle. It was a rather silly affair. What had once been the moat, was now filled with wildflowers and garish weeds that bounded forth in all directions sending out shoots until they looked quite like a crowd of natives. Thus, they served the moat's original purpose and deterred the local wanderer from investigating too closely.

She had wanted it, demanded it, but never asked him for it. No, not once. It had stood on the lonely hill for centuries and been vacated for at least twenty-five years before he had paid the modest sum that made him lord of the manor.

With the second million he had made the castle habitable. Masons and stone cutters had replaced the missing north turret. Carpenters had made the dank shell into a manse quite befitting its nouveau riche master and mistress. Heavy brocade and damask draperies clothed the long windows. One by one the finest antiques began to find their way into the rooms of the castle. Soon the sounds of the workers' coarse language and laughter were replaced by the muffled hush of servant's voices as they rushed about doing their mistress' bidding.

As the third and fourth million were being consumed, the lights of the castle were seen to sparkle at night. Echoes of laughter and lively music seeped down into the nearby valley. Deep black Rolls Royces sped through the darkness, drawing up before the castle doors and discharging their merry passengers. It was a grand time of sparkling diamonds and champagne. Lily pads replaced the hostile native weeds in the moat. But it was not enough. They had been to Versailles and now she must have a long hallway of glass with something to put at the end of it, a conservatory. A few years slipped away and the east and west wings were added.

It was during the time of the tenth million and on the morning of their twentieth wedding anniversary that he awoke with an empty feeling. He had somehow arrived at the conclusion that he no longer loved her. What frightened him more was that he didn't think he ever had. It certainly didn't occur to him to think that he ever could. With overwhelming contriteness he presented her with an aviary filled with rare and exotic birds, whose beauty, he assured her, would never exceed her own. He had presented himself with a mistress; after all, everyone else at the club had one, why not him? He provided her with a simple yet elegantly appointed flat in town and began spending his time there. His wife never missed him. Her suite was in the west wing while his was now in the east wing.

He was a busy man, up at all hours, with visitors coming and going. The move was for her sake, he said quite earnestly. He was following her as she flitted from one part of the suite to another shuffling through papers and closets. "What dear?" she would ask absently. He would start over again, resentfully, pausing expectantly for the comments and questions that never came. When he finally became abrupt with her she straightened up and gave him a slightly puzzled, harried look. She asked him why he felt it so necessary to pester her with trivial domestic problems that could easily be handled by the staff, when he knew she was expecting the shah for dinner and really, what did he think she should wear, the white or the blue gown?

The white, he said a bit sheepishly, and apologetically. He had taken his leave of her then, sighing all the while with relief. That same week he ordered a heated pool and spa to be built for her personal use.

By now the original castle was dwarfed by additions, taking up many acres and city blocks. In one of his more morbid moods he had three mausoleums built. They fringed the south end of the estate. Two were set quite close together and the third one was a distance apart, facing away from the other two. She never asked who the third one was for although they had no children.

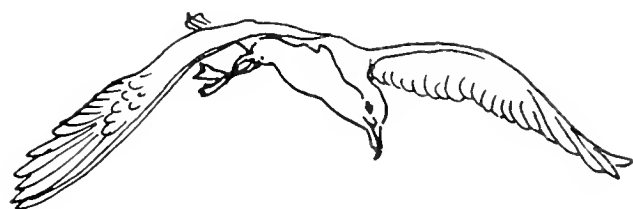

The year after he had amassed his first billion, she died. It was quite sudden and he had her body placed in the separate mausoleum. Then he did a quite remarkable thing. He called all of the wrecking firms within a fifty mile radius and had them report to the castle. Bit by bit, addition by addition they began to demolish everything except the original castle. The hall of glass was the first to fall. Shattering and splintering, it caught the rays of sunlight and finally achieved the beauty it had always lacked. For days afterwards, wildlife reports mentioned many rare bird sightings in the vicinity of the castle. Trucks lumbered up and down the long drive carrying loads of debris and returning for more. Chairs, sofas and all manner of furniture adorned the lawn, clustered in informal, tight-knit groups like guests at a garden party. There they remained until various antique galleries and dealerships came to claim them. The castle was then boarded up and closed. The moat is filled with wildflowers and garish weeds that resemble angry natives waving spears. A solitary mausoleum, covered with briars and ivy, stands guard.

table was ready for Christmas dinner. As the family took their usual places, the slow hum of the motor began. Father pulled the chain overhead and the warm plates were lowered in front of him. Mother pressed the foot lever to raise the soup tureen. There is always a burden on the old system when we have a holiday meal. The pulley on the silver server caught half-way and only two spoons came through. The roast slid away from its place on the conveyor and came to rest on Mother's lap. By the time the vegetables were served, conversation was easy and everyone relaxed. It was the plum pudding that brought the dinner to a halt. When father turned the crank to raise it from the steamer, the whole system exploded. A short circuit sent sprays of wine over everyone. Biscuits, nuts, and mint flew across the room. Father swore, Mother fainted, and the children ran around trying to gather the scattered

On a barely lit street corner a silhouette appeared beside an antiquated lamppost whose flame gradually dimmed like a smooth, black form against the murky sky. Slightly bent and motionless as though time had tired its bones, it faced shops whose lights had long faded. The hat, tilted, contrasted with the upright street light. Across the deserted boulevard, a laundromat now stood where a movie theatre once had. Beyond the corner, the boulevard expanded into a broad thoroughfare with the semblance of small structures on either side. As if it had been biding its time for years . . .

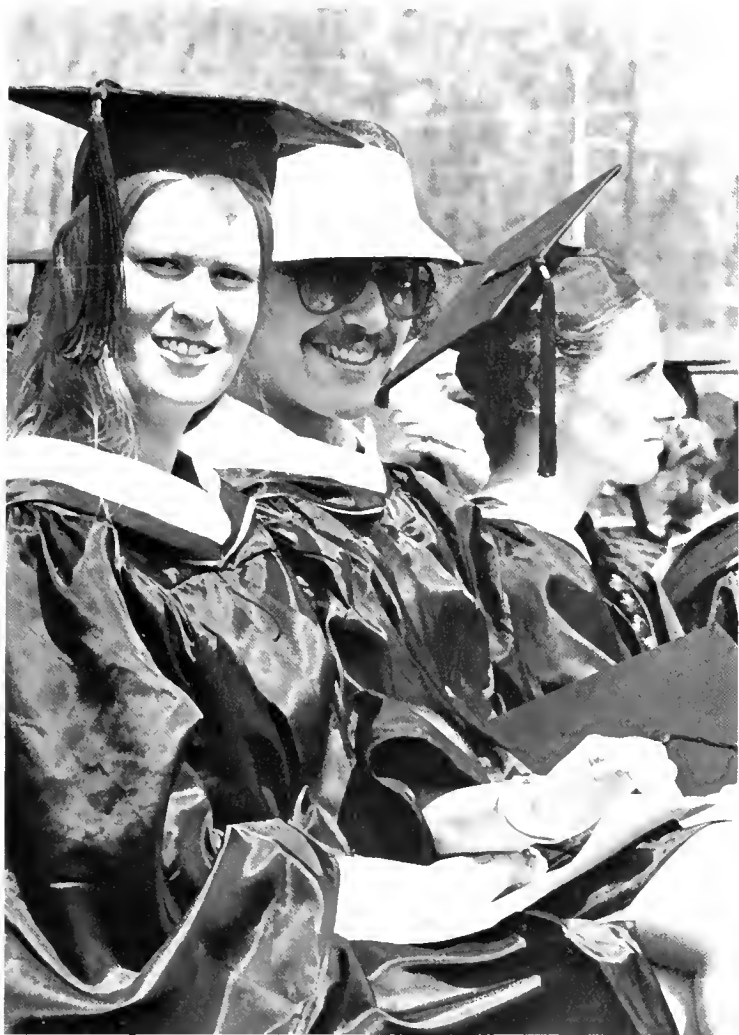

At some distance from this solitary image, a shiny white figure emerged — on its majestic forehead one startling horn. Ten yards from the drooping silhouette the animal's satiny silver-white coat appeared polished to brilliance. The treading of its hooved feet did not disturb the tranquility of the silent street. Beneath the horn peered two searching eyes. As it passed in front of the figure that seemed undisturbed for eternity, it bowed its head with dignity.

The silhouette remained in the half-light and the splendid white being continued on and on.

*Instead of anger
Let me feel compassion.
Instead of rage
Let me show concern.
Instead of hate
Let me seek change.
For, if to a warring, wondering world
Each of us will bring Compassion,
Concern,
Change,
Then perhaps there will be love.*

"No man is an island entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main."

John Donne

Editor

I would like to thank the people who made the 1978 SERPENTINE what it is. The people behind the scenes who were always there to help. I also want to thank my brother and sister for typing and lifting and for being a real family.

Eddy (Fred) Shinn

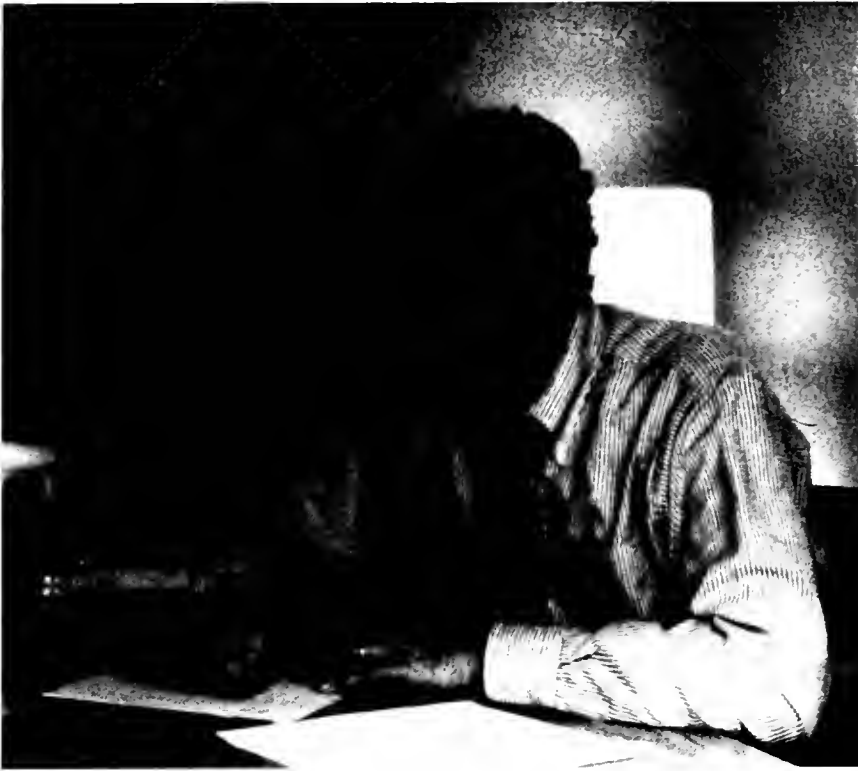

Bruce Norris — the mystery sports writer.

Mike Joyce — teddy bear, advertising and poster man.

Jerry Sweeney — a friend to all.

Dr. John P. Field — SERPENTINE advisor and friend and proofreader (oops)

Sue Calabro — “Bananas” but a terrific secretary

Chris Spencer, professional photographer — he often showed us how to pose!

George Nichols, publisher and deadline extender.
